A Wedding Gift.

We confess to a feeling of sadness in observing the list of wedding presents given the Hon. Hugo Charteris on the occasion of his marriage to Lady Violet Manners, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Rutland. With Mr. A. J. Balfour, Mr. Herbert Asquith, the Duke of Connaught, Lord Lytton, the Marquis of Granby, and as contributors we might have hoped to escape from the seeming inevitability of the tin, the gold inkstand, the cigarette box and kindred unpalatable.

But Mr. Balfour's great genius led him no further than a set of Mr. Asquith's ingenuity and daring produced nothing more than a "set of sixes," the Marquis of Granby, a cumbered hopelessly with a "set of Chance," Lord Lytton had a flight of fancy and got as far as an "old river bell," Mr. Eddie Marsh confessed despair with "poems of Shelley," Lord Middleton was exhausted with "tall silver candlesticks," the Duke of Rutland threw in a "pearl tie pin," and Mr. Arthur Sassoon made it "diamond tie pin," the Duchess of Rutland contributed a "set of pearl studs," and then in a wild imaginative flight added a "piano basket," and the Duke of Connaught, groaning in failure, threw up his hands and exclaimed, "Oh, send him a pair of guns."—Chicago Tribune.

The Galapagos Islands.

Washington confirms a report from Quito that the United States is bidding for the purchase of the Galapagos Islands, though the statement that fifteen millions had been offered for the islands is not verified. Doubtless the government of Ecuador would gladly accept a smaller sum. This isolated spot of public interest when one of the world's voyagers of battle ship visited it in search of American sailors whose rumor said had been wrecked there. The islands have long been famous among scientists. Their unique faunal phenomena figure notably in the speculations of the Darwinians. Though the group is called by the Spanish for "tortoise," individual islands bear English names, probably given them by the buccanniers of old. The desire of the government at Washington to own them is probably due to a purpose to make an outpost on the Pacific side of the canal corresponding to Guantanamo on this side.—Providence Journal.

Birthday Of Westerly Senator.

Sixty-Sixth Anniversary Commemorated by Senator Arnold's Colleagues—James W. Stillman Would Exclude Bible From the Mails as Improper—Horse Thief at North Kingston—George H. Spicer Given Surprise on 87th Birthday.

Thursday was the 66th anniversary of the birth of Senator Louis W. Arnold of Westerly, and was made the occasion of a season of celebration at the regular senate session.

Senator Dixon of Bristol, just before adjournment, claimed the floor and said: "Two years ago, when I was sent to this honorable body, I was taken by the hand by a member with a beaming 'God bless you.' I rise at this time to extend my very best wishes to that senator, a man who has been sent back here for the ninth time, and who stands high in the esteem of the majority and minority members alike. I think every senator here should know that the senator I mean is Senator Louis W. Arnold of Westerly, and I want you to join with the other senators in congratulating him on this his 66th birthday."

Senator Arnold in response said: "I cannot help feeling grateful for the kind words of the senator from Bristol. I want to say to this every senator, that I feel that I have a friendship and I desire to extend thanks for the courtesy extended to me. I appreciate the good will and kindly feeling that has always been afforded me here in this body."

Senator Wilbur of Little Compton also extended congratulations and sincere felicitations to Senator Arnold. He suggested that at the close of the session the senator from Westerly locate himself within easy reach that the members might be able to grasp his hand and voice their greetings.

Lieutenant Governor Bliss and Senators Sanborn, Monroe, McKenna, Mowry, Pierce and Wade followed in a congratulatory vein. Senator Wade particularly called attention to the fact that he had known Senator Arnold personally for forty years and that Chepachet was the birthplace of both Senator Arnold and himself. He expressed his own and the greetings of his constituency to Senator Arnold.

The Baptist state convention has bestowed the concentration effort for the year to the Baptist church in Londale, of which Rev. George W. Ripley, D. D., recently with the First Baptist church of Westerly, is pastor. This gives representation to the Londale church authority to solicit and receive aid from Baptist churches in the state for a fund to complete the new brick edifice in Londale, upon which $15,000 has already been expended. Dr. Ripley is endeavoring to raise $2,000 during the year, and upon his recent visit to his former church in Westerly the sum of $48 was contributed.

Announcement has been made in connection with the effort to secure funds for the new organ of the new church at Londale that the Rev. Mr. Ripley has offered to contribute $900, one-half the cost.

James W. Stillman, formerly of Westerly, prominent in a probate court case here for several years which traveled back and forth through the higher courts on different points of law, was again in the limelight. Mr. Stillman has made demand upon the office of the United States marshal in Boston for the exclusion of the Holy Bible from the mails on the ground that it contains improper literature. The complainant notified the government's representative that he (Stillman) is an attorney with right to practice in three states. He conferred with Assistant United States District Attorney Fisher Thursday afternoon, but was given little encouragement to see his case through. Mr. Stillman stated that he had been to see District Attorney Pelletier, by whom he was told to see the federal authorities. He left a copy of the Bible and a copy of "The Age of Solon," a book written by J. R. Perry. The attention of the assistant district attorney was called to several passages in the Bible which Mr. Stillman declares are unfit for public reading.

Before there was final settlement of the probate court case in which Mr. Stillman was interested he was a frequent visitor in Westerly, but since then he has given the town a wide berth. He often declared he had no use for the town of Westerly or the residents thereof, claiming that he had been swindled out of his rights.

The contract has been awarded for the construction of the residence of the Hon. Charles H. Brown, to be located on Granite street. The building is to be of brick and one of the finest residences in the town. The brick will be delivered by trolley direct from the clay works to within a few hundred feet of the building site.

Local Laconics.

The attachment on the Worrall restaurant has been relieved.

Nothing doing of the regular session of the Third district court Friday.

James A. Sheldon has purchased the cottage house and lot No. 45 Clark street, Westerly.

Andrew Smith of Kenyon, president of the Richmond town council, was in Westerly Friday.

Charles Crowley and James Murphy attended the banquet of the Cuttles club in Norwalk Friday night.

Senator McKenna has presented a resolution providing for biennial sessions of the Rhode Island general assembly.

James Murphy, chauffeur for James Graham Mason of New York, is spending a month's vacation at his home in Westerly.

At the regular meeting of Phebe Greene Ward chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Miss Elizabeth Frankenstein read an original paper on a Day in an Indian Village.

Misses Ida M. Clarke, Edith Bray, Jessie Collins, Adah G. Brown and Sadie Phillips have been selected as a committee to arrange for the Easter concert of the First Baptist church.

A dark and very speedy horse owned by William Hellyard of North Kingston was stolen from his stable during Thursday night. With the horse went a brass mounted harness and Concord top buggy.

Sheriff John J. Wilcox, who went to New York to take into custody Abe Smith, wanted for the theft of fowls, returned without a prisoner. The man held in New York was not the Abe Smith the sheriff sought.

At the quarterly meeting of the Rhode Island board of correction, the passage of a bill to create a registration board of osteopathy, now pending before the senate, was discussed.

There is no trace of the bodies of James Burke, Jr., and Michael Donahue. The probate court of Stonington has been petitioned for appointment of a trustee of the estate of Mr. Donahue, who was a resident of Pawcatuck.

Upon the grounds of desertion Warren T. Sheffield of Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, was granted divorce Friday from Edna Perkins Sheffield of Lower Pawcatuck, by Judge Gardiner. Green of the superior court for New London county.

Mrs. Martha M. Burdick died in North Kingston.

MYSTIC

Walter Sheahan Dismisses His Second Time—New Wilcox Steamer to Be Launched Today—Town Court Appointments the Expected.

Walter Sheahan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Sheahan, who fell from a tree on the 20th of December, is again with his mother in room at his home Thursday evening, discharging his duty again. Dr. P. T. Macdowd ordered the boy taken to the Memorial hospital. The ambulance came over on Friday morning, and the boy was taken to New London for treatment.

Visit from State Officer.

Mystic council, No. 29, met in I. O. O. F. hall on Friday evening and received an official visit from District Deputy Grand Master Oliver D. L. Burrows of the Grand council of Connecticut.

The regular monthly meeting of the executive committee of the Mystic fire district was held Friday evening in the parlors of B. P. Hoxie engine company. Considerable business was transacted. The annual meeting will be held late in March.

Launching Today.

A number will attend the launching of the fishing boat at the Noank shipyard today (Saturday), when the Wilcox Fertilizer company will have another boat to add to its fleet. It will be named after Mrs. Hoxie, wife of the owner, and will be christened by his youngest daughter, Miss Marion Wilcox of Mystic, at 11 o'clock this morning. This makes four boats that the company has built for the Wilcox people.

Appointments Cause Surprise.

Mystic people were surprised on Thursday night when it became known that W. B. Breed of Stonington had been elected to the town court and that Elias B. Wheeler was to be deputy judge. There had been three candidates in the field, Frank H. Hinkley, Benjamin H. Hoxie and W. B. Breed, and one week ago Wednesday nearly thirty of the voters of the town went to the polls to elect the hearing and came home convinced that their candidate would be elected. Now when it will be appointed prosecuting attorney is the question.

Local Gleanings.

Mr. and Mrs. William K. Holmes and son, Charles D. Holmes, are visiting in New York city.

G. Francis Costello was in Norwalk Friday.

Byron Billings has returned from a trip to Baltimore.

Mystic relatives were saddened on Friday to learn of the death of a young man, Edwin B. Miner on Thursday at his home in Norwalk. Mr. Miner was a frequent visitor to this place.

Ernest H. Sanders, superintendent of the Mystic Gas and Electric Light company, is having installed a larger transformer at the Mystic substation.

Mystic Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, met in the G. A. R. hall on Thursday evening. One application was received and placed in the hands of a committee. After business was transacted, James J. Toller gave musical selections on the phonograph.

The Profession of Self-Denial.

The husband of a woman being operated upon in a Philadelphia hospital refused to give consent to the operation. The woman's life was saved. Considerable work has been done by the medical profession in the past few years to teach them to give up their own lives for the sake of others. They endow young men and women with advantage in the struggle for life, and they are not to be despised. The impulse of crime and the compulsion of primitive needs, they are not to be despised. They are to be exact, to be confident and capable. All this teaching is for the good of the student, for his own betterment. No other schools than the medical universities is emphasis laid upon self-denial. In no other schools are men and women tried to the limit, to be willing, to make efficient sacrifices for any in need, brother or friend or stranger.

A Sporting Offer.

Of sporting offers made by the large owners of the horse racing track at Gustavus of Sweden, when he was besieging Prague, is worthy of recall. A case of the king's horse, the king's amusement to devour a large hog, then and there. General Koenigsmark, so runs the tale, suggested that one with such an appetite ought to be burned as a sorcerer, on which the peasant said to the king: "If you will make that old gentleman take off his spur, I will eat him before I begin the pig."

A Prima Donna's Discovery.

The emotions of Keats in first looking into Chapman's Homer are rare in a day of crammed and bored candidates for a college entrance examination. The Englishman, however, the lyric stage has apparently duplicated the experience. "For the first time in my life," he says, "I have read the Bible." And he goes on to offer evidence, not only of reading, but an earnest judgment. "It was reading about Solomon, and I just adore him." It was in Philadelphia that the new planet swam into her ken, and that, like stout Cortez (who was really Balboa), she stared at the strange sight with the "wild surmise" which the Pacific around in the bold Spaniard. How deeply she was affected is revealed by her declaration of intention to read the "good book." It would be interesting to know the reason for her flattering impression of the luxury-loving monarch, but she gives no hint. "Literary Loves of a Prima Donna" will do much to reveal the good time, but probably not until we have had to run the gauntlet of announcements such as "My First Book," "My First Love," "What An Attorney For," "Defense Could Say for Cain," and "The Psychology of Saul." All in all, a book no worse than the average of the great of this world.—N. Y. Evening Post.

The End in Sight.

The Norwich Bulletin observes that some politicians never can accept the result of a election unless it goes their way, and that is true. They belong to the class of political workers who arrange causes for the purpose of making a fool of the voters, and who, when the issue is not allowable. But we imagine that the race of that sort of workers is becoming extinct with the end in sight. Bridgeport Standard.

A religious paper described the throat of a suicide as being "cut from year to year."

Rev. Charles Mason in New York Sanitarium—Lenten Services—Church and Club Interests.

The Rev. Charles Mason of Calvary Episcopal church, who has been ill for several weeks, is now in a sanitarium in New York.

The Sunday morning services in Calvary church have been held regularly each week. During Lent service will be held each Friday evening at 7.30 o'clock, when visiting clergymen will officiate.

Music Follows Supper.

The social in the Second Congregational church parlors Thursday evening was well attended. An excellent supper was served and all who attended enjoyed the musical program which followed.

The ladies of the Baptist church held their weekly missionary meeting at the home of Mrs. Asa Wilcox on Friday afternoon. Considerable sewing was done. All stayed to supper, which was served by the hostess, after which the company was invited to spend the evening.

About the Borough.

The monthly meeting of Stonington Steam Fire Engine company was held in their room on Gold street Thursday evening.

Charles D. Main has injured his knee and will be obliged to take a rest for a few days.

Charles P. Whitall has returned from a business trip south.

Edward Carson has returned to his home in Auburn, R. I.

Word received from Mr. and Mrs. William P. Griffin is to the effect that they are finding much pleasure in Bermuda and greatly enjoyed meeting Chandler Wayland there. Mr. Wayland is one of Stonington's summer residents and spends his winters in Bermuda.

Mrs. Fred Wilcox is in New York.

NOANK

Meeting of Silver Links—Ira Lamb Able to Leave Hospital.

The Silver Links society held their weekly meeting at the home of Mrs. John Speck on High street Thursday evening.

A social hour was spent, during which refreshments were served. There are about 40 members of the society will be held in the Methodist church parlors next Tuesday.

Village Varieties.

Miss Abbie Fish of Spicer avenue is visiting Mrs. Elizabeth Latham in Bridgeport.

Mrs. John Ebbetts is confined to her home on Pearl street with a severe attack of tonsillitis.

Mrs. Ellison Lewey is visiting friends in Boston.

Mrs. Chris Jensen, who has spent the winter in Scotland with her parents, is expected home today (Saturday).

Ira Lamb Leaves Hospital.

Ira Lamb, who has been under treatment at Memorial hospital for a fractured collarbone, was discharged Thursday and has returned home.

Mrs. Charles Libby and daughter, Mrs. John Libby, are in New London Thursday.

Moses W. Rathbun, who is seriously ill at his home on Front street, is a little more comfortable.

Deacon Robert Palmer was in Westerly Friday.

Austin Lamb of Ledyard was in town Friday.

James Stanley of Waterford was in the village Friday on business.

Good Fare of Cod.

The fishing schooner W. Talbot Dodge, Capt. Joseph Brown, came in to port recently after a few days' trip trawling off Montauk Point, with two barrels of cod.

To Prevent Will Contests.

There has been introduced in the Massachusetts legislature a bill to prevent will contests, by the simple expedient of providing that when a man has made and executed his will, he may go before a probate court and have the question of his legal ability to thus dispose of his property passed upon. There are obvious advantages in this plan. Heirs would, of course, have a right to be heard, but those who thought they were not generously dealt with, might, from motives of policy, refrain from making any suggestion that the person making the will was of unsound mind. There would be the possibility, not to say the probability, that soundness of mind would be established. Then there might be danger that the man of property, acting upon a very natural impulse, would make a new will, which might in turn be sustained, and which would make the last state of the doubters worse than the first. The bill is approved by ex-Attorney General Albert E. Pillsbury of Massachusetts, who says: "The looking of dead men's estates has now become an established industry in Massachusetts, as it has been in New York for many years. A will
